Revealed: Tankoa’s new 72m Project Solo ready for launch

Tanka’s Seaport shipyard in Genoa is poised to unveil a new 72m Project Solo this week. The 72m (236ft) Project Solo, a collaborative effort between Tankoa Yachts and Italian designer Stefano Pastrovich, is set to make its debut at the shipyard’s facilities in the coming days.

The project, named Solo, is the latest addition to Tankoa’s growing portfolio of superyacht designs. It is the result of a partnership between the shipyard and Pastrovich, who is renowned for his innovative and futuristic designs.

Solo will be the first of Tankoa’s new build vessels, and it is expected to be completed in the coming months. The shipyard has already started work on the project, and it is expected to be launched in the near future.

The vessel will be a true showcase of Tankoa’s expertise in yacht construction, with state-of-the-art technology and cutting-edge design. Solo is expected to set new standards in the superyacht industry, and it is sure to turn heads when it hits the water.

Tankoa Yachts is dedicated to creating the most cutting-edge and innovative vessels, and Solo is set to be a testament to that commitment. The shipyard has a proven track record of delivering high-quality vessels, and Solo is no exception.

Solo is the latest in a long line of successful projects for Tankoa Yachts, and it is sure to be a highlight of this year’s superyacht season. The shipyard is already looking ahead to its next project, and it is sure to be just as exciting and innovative as Solo.

In conclusion, Tankoa Yachts and Stefano Pastrovich have once again proven their commitment to excellence in the superyacht industry. Solo is a true example of their expertise, and it is sure to make a big impact when it hits the water. Watch this space for more updates on Solo’s progress, and stay tuned for its launch later this week.
